Organization #1: African Canadian Legal Clinic
111 Richmond St. W, Suite 503, Toronto

Organization Overview:

The African Canadian Legal Clinic (ACLC) was established in 1994 to address issues of discrimination and systematic racism. The goal of the organization is to provide legal services to the African Canadian community with a focus on racial discrimination and anti-black racism. The clinic also provides legal advice and acts as an advocacy agency and as a resource centre. This is done through legal education, social work and advocacy as well as referrals. The organization did not report a 2007 operating budget.

Project Information: Lawrence Heights Awareness Program (LHAP)

This project works to assist and employ youth by implementing a series of educational workshops in their community. This project will operate in 2 phases: the first will provide full-time employment to a group of underemployed African Canadian youth that are not in school; the second phase will educate these youth on their immediate and ancient histories and the Canadian legal system. The goal of the project is that through these 2 experiences, the participants will gain a better understanding of who they are and knowledge of the legal system they are currently governed by.

Organization #2: Anasa Collective

74 Firvalley Court, c/o Warden Woods Community Centre,

Organization Overview:

This group is made up of female community leaders from African Diaspora and guided by the vision of youth activist Nadine Peazer. The group works to mobilize racialized at-risk females, specifically African-Canadian young women, in relation to their career and personal development from a holistic perspective. The group was formed in 2007. Activities include community outreach, pre-employment, life-skills and wellness training workshops. The group operates with in-kind support.

Project Information: Warrior Princess Project

The project works to offer a holistic approach to pre-employment activities for young women facing at-risk situations. With the support of its outreach partners, the group aims to work with various community organizations to launch the project in Dorset Park, Steeles-L'Amoureux, Crescent Town, Scarborough Village and Kingston-Galloway. Training topics include self care, stress management, diet and exercise, healthy relationships, employment training and financial literacy. Community members will be involved as mentors, guest facilitators, and/or resource supporters in sharing alternative methods of self-empowerment for the young women. The project plans to employ seven young women residing in the targeted areas to plan, design and implement all of the proposed activities. They will also provide ideas and outreach support to form a volunteer youth advisory committee.

Organization #5: Black Creek Community Health Centre
2202 Jane Street, Unit 5, Toronto

Organization Overview:

The organization provides health care services in a holistic manner and works with people within the Jane/Finch area to create safe and healthy communities. Services include clinical health care providers, community health promotion for all ages, mental health and programs for seniors. The organization reported a 2007 operating budget of $2,487,493.00.

Project Information: Teen Moms On The Move

Based on the existing Teen Moms on the Move Program, the project works to provide a train-the-trainer opportunity to ten young mothers between 18-24 years old as project mentors. They will then facilitate workshops on a number of topics and mentor younger females. The young women will assume mentorship positions and the younger mentees (age 11-15) will be from the Jane and Finch area. This project works to address gender-based violence identified in the recent School Community Safety Panel Report. This project will create safe spaces that support the students to prevent incidents of gender based violence from occurring. The mentorship leads will assume key responsibilities involving the operation and logistic aspects of the project. Other mentors will brainstorm a process to create clear directions for the project and establish a framework for program delivery. Activities include: training; workshops; policy and procedure development; mentees outreach; and recruitment and mentorship.

Organization Overview:

Flemingdon Health Centre is a non-profit charitable community health centre established in 1972. FHC is funded by the Toronto Central LHINs (Local Health Integrated Networks) and governed by a volunteer board of directors consisting primarily of residents and/or clients. The Centre provides a wide range of primary health services with an emphasis on illness prevention, health promotion, health education and community development. FHC works in partnership with a variety of health organizations to ensure continuity of care. To address the broad determinants of health it also works with community partners such as schools, legal clinics, neighbourhood and social services, and grass roots community organizations. The organization reported a 2007 operating budget of $4,133,606.00.

Project Information: Strong Steps

The project works to implement a mentoring program in partnership with Youth Assisting Youth that will allow newly immigrated girls in grades 11-12 living in Flemingdon Park to be mentored by final year students of universities/colleges/apprenticeships, or recent graduates. These university students will in turn be mentored by professional women in fields of their career choice. The goal of this project is to give high school girls an opportunity to learn from peer mentors, and to have someone who they can talk to about their upcoming transition to higher studies and the challenges involved. These mentors in turn would have an opportunity to be encouraged by professional women in the community to pursue challenging and meaningful careers. Organization #22: One-On-One

3850 Finch Avenue East, Unit 410, Toronto

Organization Overview:

This group was established in 2006 with the primary goal of pairing peer mentors with youth in a manner that emphasizes guidance, engagement and introspection over rigid lesson plans and client/councillor or student/teacher relationships. There are currently 4 members/mentors in the group and membership is open for those that have compassion and a heart for helping youth as well as some education or experience with peer counselling or youth work. The group currently operates with in-kind support.

Project Information: Young Leaders

This project works with local schools to provide an alternative to suspension/expulsion for students that are at risk and struggling to fit a school's criteria of a 'successful' student. The project uses mentors to outreach to students in the community, assists students with their work and provides a forum to discuss personal issues and feelings, helping them identify problems and to develop successful life strategies. The goals of the project are to provide youth with opportunities to make positive life changes by providing them with the tools and support to do this through peer mentors and, to assist youth in finding their own "leader voice" assisting them to see so-called barriers of age, geography and skin colour as unique strengths that foster this "leader voice." Project activities include: outreach to community and schools; volunteer recruitment; training for members and volunteers; and program delivery.
