Building Strong Relationships, Achieving Equitable Outcomes

The City of Toronto recognizes and respects the unique status and cultural diversity among the Aboriginal communities of Toronto. The City of Toronto continues its commitment to supporting the Aboriginal right to self-determination by working inclusively with Aboriginal communities in Toronto to achieve equitable outcomes for Aboriginal people within their communities and their day to day lives.

The City of Toronto recognizes the inherent rights of Aboriginal people provided by the Canadian Constitution. The City acknowledges that Aboriginal people are the original inhabitants of the land now known as the City of Toronto and that this area holds historical significance where diverse Aboriginal nations came together to exchange goods and as a sacred place for cultural practices. The City of Toronto values its Aboriginal history and the meaningful contributions of Aboriginal people to the development and the prosperity of Toronto.

The City of Toronto recognizes the rich diversity that exists within Aboriginal communities. Aboriginal people are First Nations, Métis and Inuit people. The City understands that the term Aboriginal includes diverse communities and cultures that originate from all areas across Canada as well as being indigenous to Toronto. Aboriginal people are part of the social fabric of the city and live in neighbourhoods throughout Toronto.

The City of Toronto understands that many Aboriginal people living in Toronto are affected by historical and contemporary injustices which continue to have profound impacts on most, if not all, aspects of life. Commitment:

The City commits to creating training opportunities for the Toronto Public Service to learn about the history and its current day impacts from Aboriginal Elders and other Aboriginal partners. The City also commits to working with Aboriginal communities to improve public awareness of Aboriginal life in Toronto.

The City of Toronto acknowledges that Aboriginal approaches to healing, growth, and mutual understanding are often holistic in nature, and that these approaches may differ from non-Aboriginal methods. The City understands that Aboriginal people are well served when services and programs are culturally appropriate. The City also understands that the programs and practices of Aboriginal organizations are culturally based.

Commitment:

The City commits, when working with the Aboriginal communities in Toronto, to learn about the elements of an Aboriginal holistic approach from its Aboriginal partners. The City further commits to supporting this approach in the belief that this will provide the greatest benefit to the community being served.

Partner and Engage:
