SUMMARY

At the December 18, 2009 meeting of the Advisory Committee on Long-Term Care Homes and Services, the Committee asked staff to report back on the extent of current wait lists for admission to each of the ten (10) long-term care homes, in order to augment the data available in the various Home Advisory Committee minutes and provide a division-wide perspective.

Further, the Committee asked staff to consider ways and means of providing periodic division-wide updates about the extent of the wait lists.

This report provides data related to the current wait lists and suggests next steps.

COMMENTS

There is no standardized method among the Community Care Access Centres (CCAC) for maintaining and/or communicating wait lists to individual long-term care homes. There are five (5) CCACs that serve portions of the City of Toronto. Currently, most CCACs send applicant information via facsimile and there is no central database.

Although the division is prepared to work with the various CCACs to establish an e-system for wait list management, none exists at present. This work will be undertaken in future.

The following chart summarizes the current wait lists in the City's various homes.
