Assessing Candidate Diversity

- As part of the application process, candidates can complete a voluntary, confidential diversity information survey.
- This information is used to help us assess our outreach and recruitment efforts, and for Councillors to know more about the diversity of the board they are appointing.

How Board Members Identify

One of the voluntary questions on the applications asks the following:

- A person with a disability has an ongoing physical, mental, sensory or learning impairment which may result in experiencing disadvantage or barriers to full participation in society. Based on this description, do you consider yourself to be a person with a disability?

How Board Members Identify

- So far during this term of Council, 6.4% of applicants identify as a person with a disability.
- Currently, 6.7% of appointees to City boards and committees identify as a person with a disability (19 of the 283 appointees who responded to this question).
- According to the 2011 Census, the population of people with disabilities in Toronto was 12.8%.
