

Ron Kanter

Ron Kanter practises regulatory law, with a focus on municipal, planning and procurement issues, with the firm of McDonald & Hayden LLP.

Ron Kanter advises public sector clients, such as the Ontario Cabinet Office, Ontario Energy Board, municipalities, utilities and library boards on governance, restructuring, and regulatory matters. He represents multinational and Canadian clients selling goods and services to provincial and municipal governments, airport authorities and transit commissions. Ron also counsels public and private sector clients on planning applications, including financial strategies for development.

Ron holds a B.A. in Political Science (Glendon College), an LL.B. (University of Toronto) and an LL.M. in Public Law (Osgoode Hall Law School). He is currently Chair of the Toronto Board of Trade Municipal Affairs Committee and served on its Governance Task Force. Ron writes and speaks frequently on municipal governance and planning issues.

He has taught at the U. of T. Faculty of Law and Law Society Bar Admission Course. Ron also previously served as an elected member of Toronto and Metropolitan Toronto Councils and the Ontario Legislature.
