REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

Glen Road Houses

Description

The properties at 10 and 12 Glen Road are worthy of designation under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act, and meet the criteria for municipal designation prescribed by the Province of Ontario under the three categories of design, associative and contextual value. The pair of semi-detached 2½-storey house form buildings are located on the west side of Glen Road, north of Howard Street. Constructed on land formerly owned by Edgar Jarvis whose family developed the Rosedale neighbourhood, the Glen Road Houses were part of a group of six semi-detached houses at 6-16 Glen Road that were placed by September 1884 according to the tax assessment rolls. At that time, all but one of the units remained vacant and in the ownership of William Muir and Arthur Coleman, who developed the sites. The occupants in 1885 included merchants, an estate agent, and the owner of a livery stable. The properties at 10 and 12 Glen Road were listed on the City of Toronto Inventory of Heritage Properties in 1974, along with other remaining buildings along this short stretch of Glen Road.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

The Glen Road Houses have design value as a pair of surviving late 19th century house form buildings with patterned brickwork that are indicative of the style of residential buildings that were once prominent on Sherbourne Street and in the adjoining neighbourhood. The pair of dwellings at 10 and 12 Glen Road are almost identical to their neighbours at 6 and 8 Glen Road, excluding the detailing on the verandahs. Photographs in the collection of the City of Toronto Archives dating to 1913 reveal that the buildings retain most of their original features.

Historically, the Glen Road Houses are integral parts of the collection of late 19th and early 20th century residential buildings along the street. The similar semi-detached houses at 18-20 and 22-24 Glen Road were demolished with other buildings for the eastward extension of Bloor Street East and the widening of the Glen Road Bridge to Rosedale, making the survival of the Glen Road Houses more significant.

The pair of semi-detached houses at 10 and 12 Glen Road are important in context with the other surviving buildings on Glen Road, where the Roslyn Apartments at #1 and #7 and the house form building designed by Eden Smith at #9 are also identified on the City's heritage inventory. Directly east, St. Simon's Anglican Church at 40 Howard Street (now known as 525 Bloor Street East) is designated under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act, while a number of single and semi-detached houses on Howard Street are also recognized heritage properties.
Heritage Attributes

The heritage attributes of the properties at 10 and 12 Glen Road are:

• The 2½-storey structures covered by gable roofs with brick chimneys on the ends and cross gables with bargeboard on the east slopes.

• The red brick cladding with contrasting yellow brick detailing, and the brick and wood trim (the east façades have been painted).

• The organization of the principal (east) façades as mirror images, with the main entrances placed in the centre and protected by an open single-storey wood verandah with brick piers and wood columns supporting a cornice (the wood balustrade has been removed from #10).

• On either side of the entries, the 2½-storey frontispieces under the cross gables where the first floor has bay windows with cornices and segmental-arched window openings with brick voussoirs.

• The segmental-arched window openings with brick voussoirs across the second storey, where the openings above the entries are slightly wider in size.

• The diminutive round-arched window openings in the attic level.

The two-storey flat-roofed wings attached to the rear (west) walls of the semi-detached house form buildings at 10 and 12 Glen Road are not identified as heritage attributes in the Reasons for Designation.
