SCHEDULE "A"
STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE
REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

Description

The property at 607 Sherbourne Street is worthy of designation under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural heritage value, and meets the criteria for municipal designation prescribed by the Province of Ontario under the categories of design and contextual value. Located on the east side of Sherbourne Street in the first block north of Howard Street, the 2½-storey building (1875) originated as a unit of a five-part row house. In 1895, the southernmost row house was replaced by the Anson Jones House, which is extant at 603 Sherbourne Street.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

Contextually, the row house at 607 Sherbourne contributes to the collection of surviving heritage buildings dating to the late 19th and early 20th centuries that characterizes the Howard Street neighbourhood as it originated and evolved as a desirable upscale residential enclave southeast of Sherbourne Street and Bloor Street East. Visually and historically linked to the neighbourhood surroundings, the row house dates to the initial development of the area and, together with the other surviving row house at 605 Sherbourne and the adjoining heritage buildings at 601 and 603 Sherbourne Street, anchor the west entrance to Howard Street.

While the Sherbourne Street Row House is a representative example of residential housing, together with the other remaining row house at 605 Sherbourne Street, it is significant as the early surviving building in the Howard Street neighbourhood and reflects the initial development of the residential enclave in the 1870s. The house is distinguished from its neighbour at 605 Sherbourne by the different shape of the attic window. As one of the remaining components of a five-unit row house, the dwelling at 607 Sherbourne is an early illustration of the Toronto Bay-n-Gable style, with the characteristic bay window under a gabled roof.

Heritage Attributes

The heritage attributes of the property at 607 Sherbourne Street are:

- The row house
- The scale, form and massing of the 2½-storey rectangular plan
- The red brick cladding, with brick, stone and wood trim (the brickwork has been painted)
- The cross-gable roof with a brick chimney
- The principal (west) façade, which is divided into two bays with the main entrance in the left (north) bay, a single-storey bay window in the south bay, and segmental-arched window openings with hood moulds in both floors and the attic level
- The placement and setback of the row house on the east side of Sherbourne Street
- The south wall of the row house at 607 Sherbourne Street is attached to the other surviving row house at 605 Sherbourne, while its north wall originally abutted another unit of the row houses, since demolished.
