

24. Photographs, Elgin Building, June 2012: with the east façade on Yonge Street (above) and the south elevation on Adelaide Street East (below) (Heritage Preservation Services)

25. Photographs, Low-Rise Heritage Buildings on Yonge Street between Front and Queen Streets, June 2012: the Bank of Montreal (1885) at #30 Yonge (above) and the former 19th century storefronts, bank and hotel (corner) along Yonge Street (left) and Wellington Street West (right) anchor the east end of BCE Place (now Brookfield Place) (Heritage Preservation Services)

26. Photographs, Low-Rise Heritage Buildings on Yonge Street between Front and Queen Streets, June 2012: at the northeast corner of Wellington Street East, the former Bank of British North America (1873) at #49 Yonge and the surviving section of the A. V. Brown Building (1847) at #51 Yonge (right) (Heritage Preservation Services)

27. Photographs, Low-Rise Heritage Buildings on Yonge Street between Front and Queen Streets, June 2012: on the west side, north of King Street, the Robert Fairweather Building (1919) at #100 Yonge and the Upper Canada Bible and Tract Society Building (1886) at #104 Yonge (Heritage Preservation Services)

28. Photographs, Low-Rise Heritage Buildings on Yonge Street between Front and Queen Streets, June 2012: on the east side, north of King Street, the Piper Building (1857) at 83 Yonge Street (Heritage Preservation Services)

29. Photographs, Low-Rise Heritage Buildings on Yonge Street between Front and Queen Streets, 2007: the Dineen Building at 2 Temperance Street on the northwest corner of Yonge, which was undergoing restoration in June 2012 (Heritage Preservation Services)