CONDOLENCE MOTION

Moved by: Deputy Mayor Norman Kelly
Seconded by: Councillor Frances Nunziata

The Members of Toronto City Council are deeply saddened to learn of the passing of renowned Toronto Sun news man, Hartley Steward on June 5, 2014.

Hartley Steward helped launch the Ottawa Sun and the Calgary Sun and served at the helm of the Financial Post during a long career in print. He served as publisher for the Toronto Sun from 1995 to 1997, before resigning from his post to write a twice-weekly column for the paper. Hartley officially retired in 2006.

Hartley Steward was a dedicated journalist and was passionate about issues of freedom of the press and journalistic integrity. He led the Sun newspaper to new levels of influence during the newspaper journalistic reign.

Hartley Steward will be remembered for his warmth and generosity of spirit who made journalism fun and exciting.

The City Clerk is requested to convey, on behalf of Members of Toronto City Council, our sincere sympathy to Hartley Steward’s family.

June 10, 2014