Toronto Aboriginal Support Services
Council

Building Relationships with the City of Toronto

- Presented by Crystal Basi, Executive Director, TASSC

TASSC Background

TASSC grew out of the Toronto Aboriginal Social Services Association (TASSA) – a network of Indigenous support services agencies that endeavored to work together to bring about collective change in Toronto's Indigenous communities

In 2009 TASSA commissioned the Toronto Aboriginal Research Project (TARP) which resulted in the TARP Report; Toronto's most comprehensive research report on Toronto's Indigenous community

2012 TASSC became operationalized with a mission to use research, social policy, and advocacy to address the social determinants of well-being to improve and enhance the socio-economic prospects and cultural well-being of Indigenous peoples living in Toronto

TASSC has a strategic plan with a focus on four key areas:

- Local Research on Social Determinants of Well-being
- Social Policy Development and Advocacy
- Building Member Agency Capacity
- Building a Resilient and Relevant Organization

Building City Partnerships Information Sharing

TARP Report findings where applicable and new research on Toronto's Indigenous population

TASSC Research Terms of Reference to City departments to inform best practices when working with Indigenous agencies and groups

TARP Recommendations alignment with TRC's Call to Actions

Promote City of Toronto committee and advisory board positions

TASSC Presentations: Social Policy Analysis & Research, Urban Fellows

SSHA provides additional data analysis on 2013 Street Needs Assessment

Impact on Indigenous community considered within 2017 budget

3 Indigenous people now sit on the Lived Experience Poverty Advisory Table

1 Indigenous senior sits on the City of Toronto's Senior's Forum

Convenor role provides TASSC with greater sustainability and relevancy

Building City Partnerships Challenges

Partnering is often:

- Uncoordinated with other departments
- Resource dependent
- Short-term, project focused
- Not housed in an institutional or systemic way
- Time intensive

Not always efficient or impactful to the degree necessary

Lack of understanding and recognition of Indigenous self-determination despite political statements

Building City Partnerships Questions

What needs to happen for the City of Toronto to use an All My Relations perspective (Hint: a systems level approach) to advancing the needs and well-being of Toronto's Indigenous communities?

What is the role of TASSC and the Aboriginal Affairs Committee in advancing this?
