Summary

In Beaches - East York and Davenport, artists have shared insights the ways they've been hit hard by the difficult but important measures to fight COVID-19. With brighter days on the horizon, opportunities for musicians to share their craft with the public will be crucial to Toronto's cultural recovery.

Following the Province of Ontario's publication of the Roadmap to Reopen on May 20, 2021, the Province recently announced Ontario would be moving into

Step One of the framework effective June 11, 2021 at 12:01 am. This stage includes provisions for smaller, well-managed outdoor activities and patio usage.

Our City looks forward to once again enjoying music and performance. Reigniting Toronto's arts scene will be crucial to rebuilding a vibrant city and invigorating the small businesses and establishments that make up our Main Streets.

Members of the Toronto Music Advisory Committee and key stakeholders in the arts industry have expressed key insights on the situations faced by the music sector as well as suggestions for a strong recovery. Through measures to pilot music on outdoor patio spaces, Torontonians can look forward to the joys of live performance safely returning to our city.

This Motion is urgent as staff need authority and preparation is required in response to the Province of Ontario's accelerated timeline for transition into Stage One reopening beginning June 11, 2021.
