

ATTACHMENT 1

Recommended Candidates and Biographies for the William H. (Bill) Bolton Arena Board

Richard Bornet

Richard Bornet in the past managed QA departments, been a software developer, corporate trainer, instructor at community college and a scientific researcher. Over the past 14 years he has volunteered his time at Bill Bolton Arena, coaching his two kids. Creating and managing BB first web site. He has been Treasurer for the last few years and helped the Arena be not only in good financial shape, but also successfully meeting all the requirements of the City and the Auditors.

Seema Chhabra

Seema has lived in Toronto for 15 years and is alumni of University of Western Ontario. Seema currently works with the Ontario Public Service as Director of Operations at the Ministry of Children, Community and Social Services. Seema spends a lot of time at Bill Bolton arena as a player in the adult Women's league. She has seen how important arenas like Bill Bolton are to the community and wants use her skills to ensure that the arena and board continue to serve the community's interests.

James Lam

Living in the Seaton Village community for over 33 years, I bring community, ice hockey, and business experience to the table. I am currently employed by an Insurance Company for the past 17 years. I hope I can use my knowledge and assist the board with safety and legal liability responsibilities. I am currently enrolled playing Sunday night hockey skills. Currently sitting on the board and participating hockey at Bill Bolton.

Alison Norman

Alison Norman MA, B Ed, PhD, is a historian, educator and historical consultant. She works as a researcher in the Ontario government. She is an expert in Canadian history, especially Indigenous and women's history, and has published articles in the field. She has also taught at multiple colleges and universities in Ontario. She believes in the importance of space for women and girls' hockey in the City of Toronto.

Caralyn Quan

Caralyn Quan is a community worker and non-profit professional. Although she has traveled and worked abroad, she has always considered Toronto home. She currently works as Senior Manager at The New Mentality, a provincial network of youth raising awareness about mental health and working to improve the mental health system. She has a background in youth and community work. In her free time, she enjoys playing and watching sports, reading, and exploring Toronto (and other cities) by bike.