Subject: Comments for 2025.PH25.3 on November 12, 2025 City Council

To the Mayor and all City Councillors,

The KPRI adamantly reject the position that commercial conversions of private housing inside neighborhoods, or on the newly fabricated "COMMUNITY STREETS" (as opposed to major Streets or the much reviled Avenues) without proper consultation and controls on what may be built and where.

We oppose making The Kingsway, Prince Edward Drive (North and South) and Montgomery Road "Community Streets" available for commercial installations of any sort. These are STRICTLY residential streets with no need to be anything else while Bloor Street languishes underutilized. This attack on the last bastion most residents possess - THEIR PEACEFUL ENJOYMENT OF THEIR HOMES - is ill advised when we have so much retail space going vacant.

Make no mistake: this is an election issue!

Say YES to Local Input & YES to Targeted Planning.

Say NO to Blanket Rezoning.

I'm a 40 year resident of the Kingsway district: I am the ratepayer president of The Kingsway Park Ratepayers Incorporated, organization that has been active for over 50 years. We are proud to be affiliated with COTRA and all the other ratepayer groups across the city. The fact that Residents are raising these major concerns in the 11th hour is the most obvious sign that Public Consultation Failed on this important file.

Toronto Residents have been clear throughout the year. Within 2 weeks, a city-wide survey (see attached) by the Coalition of Toronto Residents' Associations (COTRA) found overwhelming Opposition from Residents, Taxpayers & Shareholders in our City to the blanket rezoning called for by this NRS proposal.

Residents are strongly opposed to as-of-right permissions for Neighborhood Interiors and supported a targeted, needs-based approach for certain Major Streets. That Feedback is Not Reflected in the Report in any meaningful way. We OPPOSE Blanket "As-of-Right" Zoning & "One Size Fits All" currently proposed.

Residents Want a measured and needs-based approach, not blanket rezoning, and their feedback identified key asks:

- Remove Neighborhood Interiors PERMANENTLY from future consideration.
- Adopt a targeted approach for rezoning some Major Streets based on demonstrated need and developed in consultation with residents, Residents' Associations, and local ward Councillors.
- Prioritize the development and support of existing commercial areas

KPRI & COTRA advocates for thoughtful, evidence-based planning that reflects the voices and needs of Residents & Local Communities.

Neighbourhood Retail & Services (NRS) FACT SHEET

Zoning changes to allow businesses to open in residential properties with no review or approval required

COTRA Survey Results

Feedback collected from September 2-15

90% oppose rezoning to allow businesses in Neighbourhood Interiors
77% oppose rezoning to allow businesses on residential Major streets
96% of comments express opposition to the proposal as is

80% want City to support current commercial and main street retail
90% want Committee of Adjustment to review applications
57% support community consultation to identify sections of Major Streets to rezone, where there is a neighbourhood need respondents!

3,400 +

3,700 + unique
comments!

Big concerns

- Cannabis, alcohol sales, bars and patios
- Loss of housing and permitted tenant evictions
- Increased noise, traffic, crime, garbage & pests, and lack of parking
- Lack of guardrails, insufficient City enforcement

A flawed NRS consultation and proposal

- Low resident awareness, support and feedback
- Local need for more retail and services not justified; inaccurate City retail maps/data
- Nearly identical to December 2024 proposal

Little change

- Major Streets - No change to blanket permission, patios permitted
Neighbourhood Interiors: Retail still permits alcohol and cannabis sales
- Retail is still allowed next to schools and parks
 - Retail permitted on corner lots and bends along Collector and Minor Arterial Roads — newly rebranded as “Community Streets” (see Road Classification List)
 - Patios permitted subject to Committee of Adjustment approval

Toronto residents DO NOT SUPPORT blanket rezoning of homes for commercial use.

Neighbourhood Retail & Services Study

Expanding Housing Options (EHON) Options in Neighbourhoods - City of Toronto

October 3 2025

- COTRA Background
- Survey:
 - Overview
- Survey Results:
 - Key Messages
 - Neighbourhood Interior
 - Major Streets
 - As of Right Zoning
 - Commercial Areas
 - Commercial in Residential
 - Awareness of Neighbourhood Retail & Services (NRS) proposal
 - Survey Comments
- What Residents Are Asking For
- Appendix: Survey Questions and Responses

COTRA:

- A city-wide coalition of residents and residents' associations, formed in response to the proposed EHON Neighbourhood Retail & Services (NRS) study.
- Wants residents to be aware of proposed zoning changes, and resident voices to inform decisions.
- Wants vibrant, thriving neighbourhoods that benefit everyone.
- Strongly supports local businesses.
- Wants thoughtful zoning changes to support this.

Our Approach:

- Build awareness and understanding for the proposed changes and the potential implications to residents.
- Maintain neutral, factual communication through our networks of residents' associations and community contacts.
- Gather resident feedback through surveys and outreach.

Our Goal:

- Drive transparency, awareness and community engagement.
- Work with Planning, Council and stakeholders for meaningful and appropriate policy changes.

- COTRA designed and distributed its survey city-wide.
- The survey explained the proposed changes and posed questions to understand residents' support, views and/or concerns.
- Survey Period: September 2 – 15, 2025 (2 weeks).

Distribution:

- 200+ residents' associations (RA) and community groups across Toronto encouraged to share the survey with members.
 - Wards 1–3: Distributed by the Coalition of Etobicoke Residents Associations (CERA).
 - Wards 4-19: Distributed by FoNTRA City Outreach
 - Wards 20–25: Distributed by Scarborough United Neighbourhoods (SUN).

Responses:

- 3,400+ respondents city-wide.
- 3,700+ comments to open-ended questions.

The survey outlined proposed zoning changes, clarified technical details, and identified key implications so residents could make informed responses.

Organized into four sections:

1. Residential Interior Streets

- Questions on permitting businesses on interior streets.

2. Major Streets

- Questions on allowing businesses on Major streets
- Included examples of Major streets in city Wards.

3. Revitalizing Commercial Areas

- Questions on existing commercial areas and potentially new businesses in neighbourhood interiors.

4. Awareness of Planning's NRS Consultation

- Questions on residents' awareness of NRS proposal.

- Survey questions were either: multiple-choice (single or multiple response) and open-ended (the option to comment openly).
- This approach gathered both quantitative and qualitative responses for a comprehensive view of residents' perspectives.

Survey Highlights

Overwhelming opposition to allowing commercial uses in both Interior Neighbourhoods (90%) and on Major Streets (77%).

Residents open to geographic-specific solutions: 57% support a new zoning category for selected Major streets, with consultation and a demonstrated local need.

Strong support for keeping Committee of Adjustment approval for any commercial conversion for Interior Neighbourhoods (92%) and Major Streets (90%).

Residents want support for existing commercial streets: Majority of residents (80%) want the City to implement policies to support existing commercial areas and to stop proposing commercial uses in residential spaces.

Low awareness from City's campaign: Less than 20% had heard of City Planning's survey, and fewer than 10% had heard of NRS via social media, pop-up events or direct communication from the City.

Top Concerns

Poor communication - Many residents feel blindsided or poorly informed about these significant proposed changes.

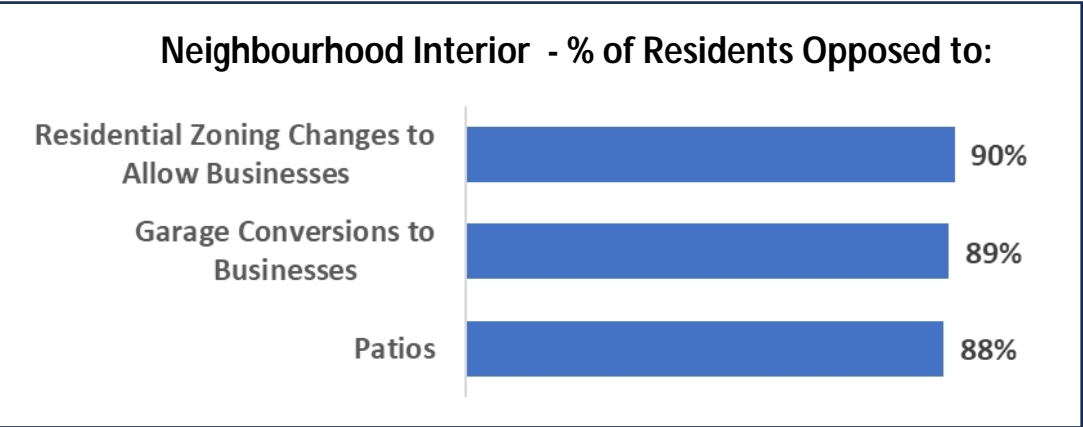

Protecting residential character – Strong desire to maintain quiet, family-oriented neighbourhoods. Many argued empty storefronts on Major streets should be filled first, through rent relief or incentives, instead of pushing businesses into residential zones.

Housing crisis contradiction – Many observed that converting homes to businesses could worsen the housing shortage by reducing the number of available of housing units.

Inadequate safeguards – Worries about traffic, parking, noise, and safety impacts. Overall sentiment is that city enforcement is inadequate and won't protect residents from adverse impact.

Flawed process – There was criticism that the city is rushing a one-size-fits-all approach without adequate consultation.\

- Consistently high opposition to the proposal across all categories.
- Residents expressed strong concern over expected issues, limited guardrails and low enforcement, and the potential for cannabis shops.

What We Heard:

Quality of Life Impacts

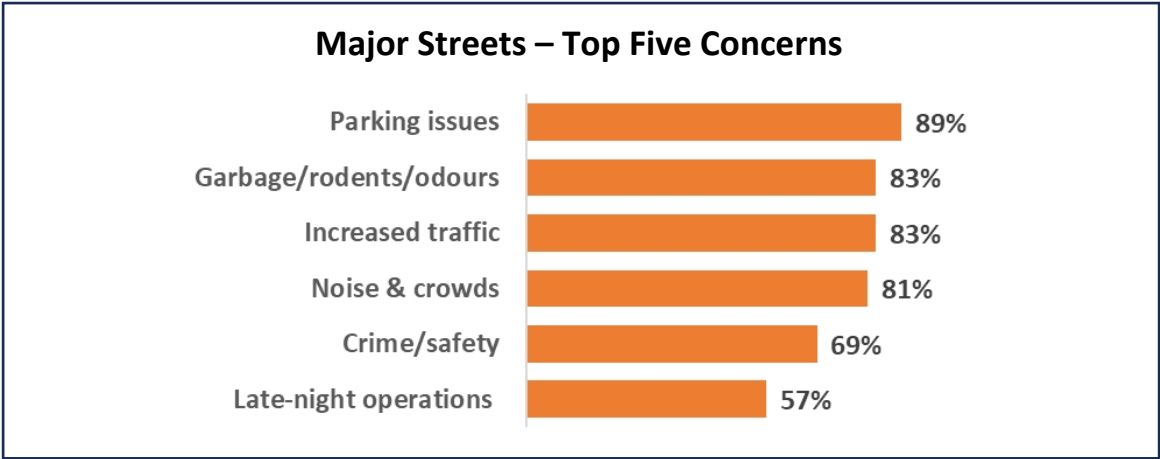

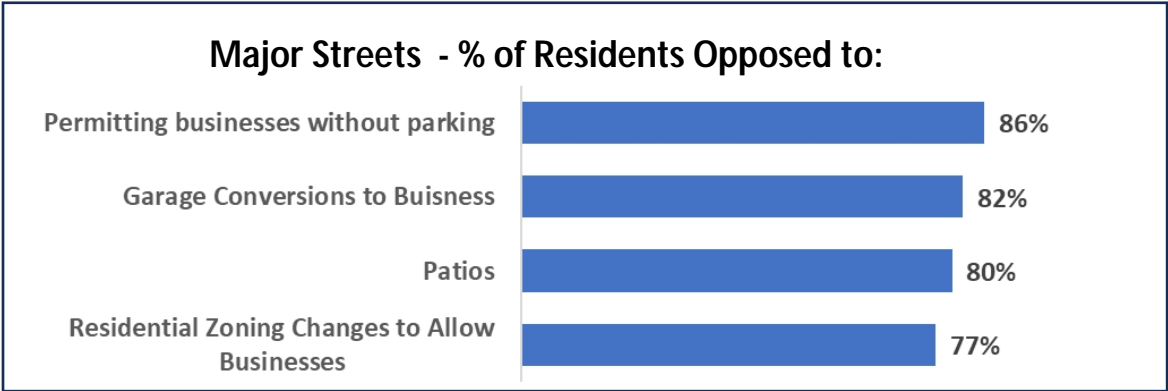

- “Why are we not protecting our neighbourhoods? These are the last peaceful areas in the city where people can have a quiet refuge.”
- “Residential neighbourhoods should be quiet- noise control will be a constant problem...When I am home, I want to relax and have quiet.”
- “Interior neighbourhoods should remain residential Introducing businesses would increase noise, traffic, and parking issues, along with late-night disturbances that disrupt children's sleep.”

No Need, Oppose Certain Uses and Concerns About Housing Loss

- “In the downtown area we don’t need another coffee shop that will potentially inhibit the movement of traffic, people and cause parking problems.”
- “There’s no need to put businesses in residential neighbourhoods. I don’t want a cannabis shop, or stores beside schools selling vapes, cigarettes, or alcohol.”
- “We do not need businesses in residential areas downtown — most services, including coffee shops, grocery stores are within a short walk.... no need to convert housing into businesses, especially when many former convenience stores have been redeveloped to provide much-needed multi-unit housing.”
- “We already have a housing crisis in Toronto we should not be decreasing the amount of livable properties by converting them into businesses. This city does not need more businesses it needs more livable units.”
- “I used to enjoy the local corner stores that sold milk and some green grocer products but now that beer and wine can be bought and there are no controls on cannabis shops or hours of operation, the model doesn’t work.”

Major Streets — Also Strong Opposition

- Strong opposition (77%) to the proposed changes, with residents saying that mixing commercial uses into residential areas will harm neighbourhood character, increase noise and traffic, and require proper review and consultation.
- Parking is a deal-breaker: 86% of residents oppose allowing new businesses on Major Streets if parking is not permitted on the property and 89% rate parking a top concern.

What We Heard:

- “I live on a major street. I live in my HOME with HOMES on either side of me. I don't want to be living in a strip mall.”
- “I have lived on a main street for over 35 years. I bought it knowing that it was a residential neighbourhood i would not want a canibas store next door, nor a cafe or retail establishment.”
- Safety, Traffic, Noise Concerns
- “SAFETY is a huge issue when allowing any business on these Major streets with NO PARKING available.”
- “These major streets already have extremely high volume of traffic we don’t need to add to the current problem.”
- “What happens to houses that back onto these rows of houses on major streets? Noise, traffic, parking, crime, property values all would negative impacts.”
- “My neighbourhood is already extremely noisy due to proximity to the beach and parks. Traffic is already a huge problem and there is limited street parking. Adding retail on our residential streets would be a disaster.”

Process and Community Input

- “Planning should identify where businesses are actually needed rather than using a one-size-fits-all approach. The list of Major Streets is shocking — many are 100% residential, and treating all Major Streets the same is unrealistic and inappropriate. Do residents even know this is being proposed for their neighbourhood?.”

Support For A New Zoning Category On Specific Major Streets Where There is a Need and With Resident Consultation

- Comments showed support for a needs-based, location-specific approach rather than blanket city-wide permissions.
- Residents want a proper analysis to determine where businesses are actually needed, noting that some Major Streets—or sections of them—might be suitable, but not all.
- This suggests that residents are not opposed to retail and services on Major streets, but see the need for thoughtful, street-by-street planning rather than a one-size-fits-all policy.

Survey Comments

- “Easing of restrictions to allow new business on Major residential streets must be done in a step-wise manner, allowing a gradual transition that respects the character of a neighbourhood and allows for residents to have input. Zoning categories with graduated criteria and restrictions might be a solution.”
- “A targeted approach ensures that commercial uses are introduced only where appropriate, supported by infrastructure and community input.”
- “....Residents who would be impacted most ought to have a major say. Perhaps a new Zoning category would be a step in the right direction.”
- “Gap analysis should be done in Neighbourhoods to first identify what services ... are not accessible”
- “On some sections of some major streets, additional businesses would be fine. In others, just not feasible for traffic congestion and lack of parking AND transit options”
- “I am not 100% against having local business on major streets that already have businesses but I am against having business allow on major streets that are highly residential and may well have streets near them that have services. That make no sense to me.”
- “Citywide blanket permissions are too broad, erode residential protections, and displace tenants. If changes are to be made, they must be done through careful consultation, targeted zoning categories, and mandatory approvals that respect community voices.”

- Residents overwhelmingly reject as-of-right zoning.
- Strong support for maintaining oversight through the Committee of Adjustment (CoA) process, ensuring proper review and neighbourhood input.
- Residents want a say in decisions that shape their community's future.

Support for CoA Review Process

What We Heard

- “If a business truly wants to open, there is already a Committee of Adjustment process, which gives neighbours the opportunity to participate in decisions that directly affect their community.”
- “If landlords can evict tenants, this is not appropriate - any such businesses should go through the C of A to ensure they are organizing their business with respect to the neighbours.”
- “More consultation is necessary with neighborhoods or resident associations. every commercial space application should go through the committee of adjustment for approval. “
- “The Committee of Adjustment is able to assess areas for local businesses and the impact of added people and traffic that would infiltrate residential areas. They should remain an integral part of any applications made.”
- “Neighbours should always have their say ... There is no sense of community or inclusion without going through the ‘Committee of Adjustment’ approval process.”
- “This seems like a drastic, sweeping proposal. It would affect many thousands of properties. Better to take this on a case by case basis.”
- “Each street is different and needs to be considered on a case by case basis.”
- “Blanket approval is ridiculous... case-by-case approval after vetting is only way to go! “

- Residents want the City to improve occupancy and support existing commercial businesses.
- Comments emphasized that vacant or struggling retail space on commercial streets should be filled before allowing businesses in residential areas.

Should The City Adopt Policies To Improve Occupancy and Support Businesses on Commercial Streets?

Some Survey Comments

- “Small businesses continue to fail in our neighborhood so can’t see any need especially in the highlighted areas. Drive around and see what a mess it is with derelict and unkept buildings both occupied and vacant.”
- “There is enough empty stores on major streets, you don't need to make new ones.”
- “Toronto has many older commercial strips, small plazas, and industrial lands ... Do not change the zone regulation unless there is no space.”
- “We need our main street businesses to be full before this should even be a consideration.”
- “Look at all of the retail space that is vacant. Why do you want to create more?”
- “Encouraging strong ‘Main Street’ commercial areas makes so much more sense.”
- “There are numerous vacant business frontages on major city streets across this city ... The city should focus energy and attention on attracting small business and retail to these empty/derelict store frontages instead. There is ample retail space available for small businesses to open a shop, they do not need to expand into the peaceful residential side streets.”
- “We need to support business in currently established, but failing commercial areas. The cost of rent to these businesses is becoming prohibitive. Rent controls should be established for commercial enterprises.”
- “Commercial units are unrentable on major streets now, This would hurt the dynamics for the major streets.”

- Residents want the City to stop proposing commercial uses in residential zones.
- Comments reflect a clear message that businesses do not belong in residential neighbourhoods.

What We Heard

- “There should not be ANY business of any kind allowed on residential streets.”
- “Residential streets are not the place for businesses ... This will not only affect an adjacent home’s value but also leave homeowners with no recourse.”
- “Absolutely no businesses should be allowed to open on residential streets!”
- “This proposal could tear a neighbourhood apart.”
- “No business in residential areas! ... The potential to totally destroy the quiet charm and peaceful atmosphere of established neighborhoods.”
- “I think that this proposal should be struck down and not considered again. This is not good for the people of Toronto.”
- “These streets are called residential for a reason.”
- “I haven’t seen anything about this until now, and I can’t believe the City is even proposing it. Residential streets aren’t designed to handle the extra traffic businesses bring. City Planning claims these will be “local businesses,” but that’s nonsense — people travel across town for the best pizza, burger, or bar. And let’s be honest: businesses don’t care about the neighbourhood when their customers come from all over the city. The idea that they’ll just “be good neighbours” is complete nonsense. This proposal should be sent back and buried. Stay out of our residential neighbourhoods! “

- Survey results indicate a low awareness of the proposal.
- The comments indicated a level of frustration with the City for not properly notifying residents early in the process. Many respondents only learned about the proposal through neighbourhood associations or by chance, not through official city channels.

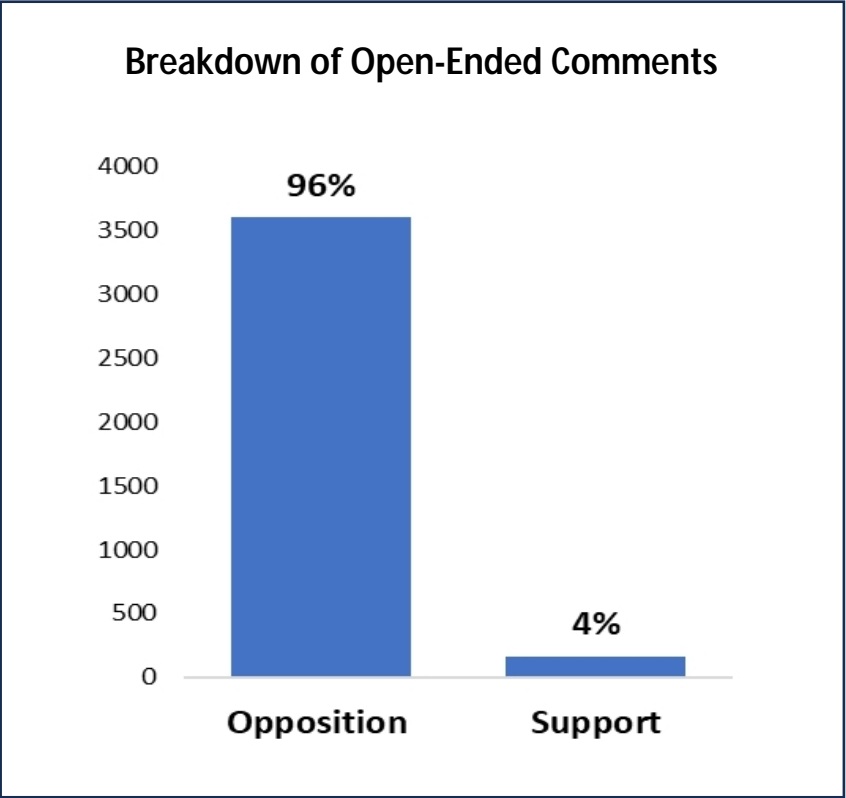

Level of Awareness: NRS Proposal

What We Heard

- "I only learned about these changes through my RA — nothing from the City."
- "The City did not do any pop-up events in our area. We will be impacted in a major way, and they ignored communities that will be impacted."
- "I am sure that the vast majority of residents in the City have no idea that this ill-conceived idea is being brought forward by City Staff."
- "I only heard about this through the local Facebook group. Terrible communications from the city, as usual."
- This lack of communication from the city is extremely concerning and I'm very upset that I'm just learning about this now."
- "No, this has been the first notice I have seen. Better communication is crucial."
- "There has been insufficient communication about this dramatic change."
- "This entire re-zoning has been kept hidden from residents of the city. Such a large change should have had far more public exposure, publicity, information given to residents, etc. What is the city trying to hide?"
- "This is being done so underhanded. I was only informed from a friend that works for the city. No one I know has been informed of these proposed changes. I say this is very sneaky and underhanded."

A review of all 3,700 + open-ended comments showed that 96% of responses expressed opposition to the city-wide proposal.

To better understand these concerns, the comments were categorized into thematic areas (see table).

Thematic Analysis of Comments

Category	Summary
Quality of Life Impact	Residents fear constant noise, traffic congestion, loss of parking, safety risks, and privacy violations.
Loss of Neighbourhood Character	Strong concern that commercial creep would destroy the peaceful, residential feel of their streets.
General Opposition	Many residents reject the proposal, calling it unnecessary and harmful.
Flawed Planning & Site Suitability	Opposition to a blanket, city-wide approach; support for case-by-case review instead.
Prioritize Existing Commercial Areas	Widespread belief that vacant storefronts and existing retail zones should be filled first.
Opposition to Specific Uses	Strong rejection of bars, patios, cannabis, alcohol, and vape shops near homes and the need for restrictions.
Enforcement & Regulation	Distrust in the City’s ability to regulate noise, parking, and bylaw violations and need for by-law enforcement.
Housing & Residential Loss	Concern that the plan undermines housing supply by displacing tenants and reducing units.
Communication & Awareness	Anger at poor consultation, misleading information, and lack of transparency from the City.
Other / Technical	Worries about infrastructure capacity, heritage preservation, and City fiscal priorities.
Positive Impacts & Support	A minority support walkability and small local businesses.

Focus on Existing Commercial Enterprises and Policies to Increase Housing

- Do not undermine existing Mainstreets and Malls
- Prioritize and invest in existing commercial areas where businesses are struggling and where store-front vacancies exist.
- The conversion of existing residential properties into businesses will reduce the housing supply, which directly contradicts EHON's goal to increase housing availability.

Avoid Blanket Permissions on Major Streets

Implement targeted zoning for retail and services on certain streets where retail and commercial uses are needed.

- Require consultation with residents/local Resident Associations.

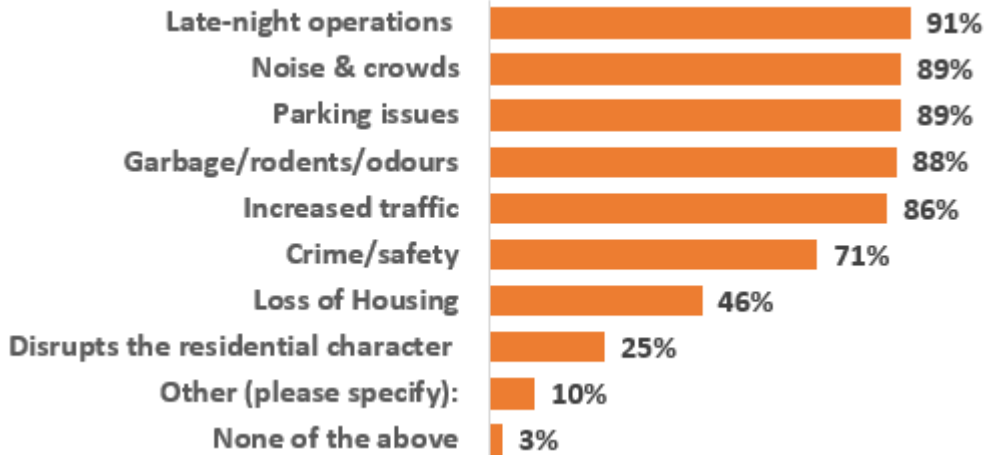

Protect Neighbourhood Interiors

- Do not allow retail and services in neighbourhood interiors as-of-right due to adverse impacts on residential character and quality of life. Small retail stores are not seen as viable solutions for issues like food deserts and delivering healthy and affordable food.
- Retain the existing Committee of Adjustment process for applications seeking to convert residential properties into businesses giving neighbours the opportunity to participate in decisions that directly affect their community.

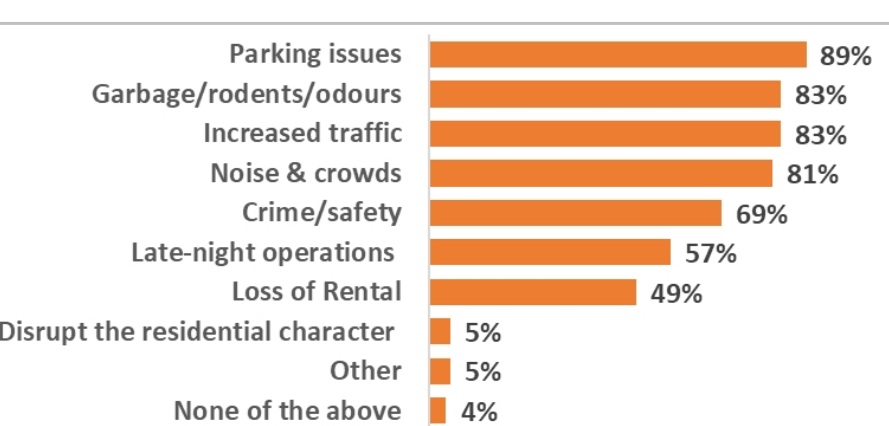

Note: Planning data show 90% of retail/service/office applications in Neighbourhoods were approved (Jan. 2018– Nov. 2023) This appears to show that the CoA review is not a barrier to opening new businesses, making as-of-right permissions unnecessary.
