Housing is a Human Right.

Everyone deserves safety, dignity, and belonging — no matter their gender, income, or ability.

Together, we can build a city where homes are designed for people to live and thrive, with compassion and inclusion at the centre.

Join the Call for Action

How you can help:

- Advocate for policies that make housing affordable and inclusive.
- Challenge systems that exclude women and gender-diverse people.
- Partner with community organizations that center lived experience.
- Share this paper and amplify the message:
Housing is a Human Right

Achieving housing equity requires collaboration across all sectors — governments, community organizations, and developers working hand in hand. When we unite our efforts and share responsibility, we can create sustainable, inclusive, and equitable outcomes for women, gender-diverse people, and all those seeking safe and dignified housing.

This position paper was developed by Nellie's Toronto Women in Action – Housing Project with support from Women and Gender Equality Canada.
