SCHEDULE "B"

Reasons for the designation of the Property at 83A BEECH AVENUE and 2236 QUEEN STREET EAST (FOX THEATRE AND APARTMENT COMPLEX)

The property at 83A Beech Avenue and 2236 Queen St. East is designated for architectural and historical reasons. Built for A. Webster in 1913 as The Prince Edward Theatre and Apartments, an early mixed residential commercial building with commercial space along Queen Street and an apartment complex, it blends sympathetically with the residential area along Beech Avenue. In 1948, the theatre became The Fox and alterations occurred to it in 1949 (Honickman and Widmer, Architects) and in 1950 (Wilfred Shulman, Architect). The building is an L-shaped, three-storey brown brick structure with wood trim. Important features include the two-storey projecting bay windows, the double-hung sash windows, the stone cornice and brick parapets. Other important elements include the main apartment entrance with bracketed hoods. The Fox Theatre is an important local landmark and neighbourhood centre in The Beaches, forming an important component along Queen St. East. It is also an example of an early movie theatre still in its original use.
