

The City of Toronto holds public consultations as one way to engage residents in the life of their city.
We invite you to get involved.

Keele Finch Plus A City of Toronto Planning Study

Open House & Public Consultation

Keele Finch Plus is a City of Toronto City Planning Study about planning for the future of the area and how to best leverage investment in subway and light rail transit (LRT) for the benefit of the community and city.

Join us at this first public meeting to learn more about the Study and to offer your input on what works in the area and what could be better in the future. The meeting will be led by City Planning and attended by Metrolinx and the TTC. We will use your input in considering where, how and by how much the area can grow. Public spaces, building design, transportation choices, community services, infrastructure and business growth are all part of this Study. The Study is anticipated to take two years to complete.
