NUIT BLANCHE 2023

UNCOVER GROUND-BREAKING ART

This year's theme, Breaking Ground, explores ideas about the natural world, change and innovation. Traditionally defined as the preparation for building or planting, Breaking Ground invites Nuit Blanche artists to create thought-provoking artworks that analyze the impacts of climate change, how the construction and development of Toronto's urban landscapes impacts communities and our collective responsibilities around land and stewardship.

GETTING AROUND

Shoaling

Curated by Lillian O'Brien Davis

Enter a multivocal exhibition focusing on connections between land and water that link threads of memory, climate, race and labour in response to the neighborhood's proximity to water and states of transition and growth. Using performance, video, sculpture and various technologies, artists address the complex relationships between human life and plant ecologies while exploring inter-species approaches to sustainability. The Shoaling exhibition consists of projects marked in green.

In the Aggregate

Curated by Noa Bronstein

Explore ideas of togetherness, friendship, allyship and collectivity that point to Toronto's unique urban topography. Experience public spaces transformed through the assembly of shared experiences whose cumulative effects are greater than the sum of their parts – a gesture of profound optimism in the possibilities of communal and shared space-making and city-building. The In the Aggregate exhibition consists of projects marked in green.

Disturbed Landscape

Curated by Kari Cwynar

Encounter a series of reversals and disruptions to the built environment in Toronto's financial district. In the corporate headquarters, bank plazas, governmental buildings and overlooked parking lots of the city's commercial centre, artists unearth the systems that shape Toronto as a city and highlight the ever-present relationship between land, economy and power in urban environments. The Disturbed Landscape exhibition consists of the projects marked in green.
