INTRODUCTION

The Social Development, Finance and Administration (SDFA) is excited to unveil our annual Impact Report. This report highlights the grant streams and initiatives managed by the Community Funding Unit (CFU) to support Indigenous, Black, and equity-deserving communities. Collaborating closely with not-for-profit organizations, grassroots, and resident-led groups, the report showcases their inspiring stories of resilience, leadership, and dedication.

In 2024, the Community Funding Unit (CFU) allocated $28,291,048 to 225 organizations through eight grant programs.

A significant milestone was achieved in 2024 when the Indigenous Funding Framework was endorsed by leaders from Toronto's Indigenous communities and Toronto City Council. This framework, co-developed with Indigenous organizations and in close partnership with the Toronto Aboriginal Support Services Council, underscores our commitment to addressing the funding inequities and barriers faced by Indigenous communities for far too long. The Council also endorsed a three-phase implementation plan, outlining the actions we will take to fulfill these commitments to reconciliation.

The implementation of the Black-Mandated Funding Framework continued in 2024, focusing on the development of a new grant program and the creation of tools and relationships to promote the Framework.

CFU worked in partnership with other City of Toronto divisions to leverage our processes and systems to support the release of an additional $6,930,661. Cross-divisional work on the Toronto Grants, Rebates and Incentives Portal (TGRIP) continued with CFU designing, building and launching a versatile, simplified system designed to support grant applicants and staff to reduce administrative burden while increasing accountability and our ability to collect data on the impact of our grants.

We share these impactful stories on behalf of the hundreds of dedicated community organizations and groups with whom we have the privilege to collaborate.

MANDATE & VALUES

Guided by principles of reconciliation, equity, transparency and accountability, we aim to support community through funding that addresses critical and emerging needs while fostering innovation and collaboration.

We value community and resident leadership and inclusivity in decision-making processes. By developing innovative and responsive grant programs, we aim to support and strengthen community-led solutions that make Toronto a better place to live, work and play.

UNIT MANDATE

To develop, deliver and evaluate community-informed grant programs that support Indigenous, Black and equity-deserving communities.

VALUES

Accountability

CFU upholds ethical resource management, compliance with policies, streamlined reporting, and equity-focused funding decisions to ensure continuous improvement and alignment with community priorities.

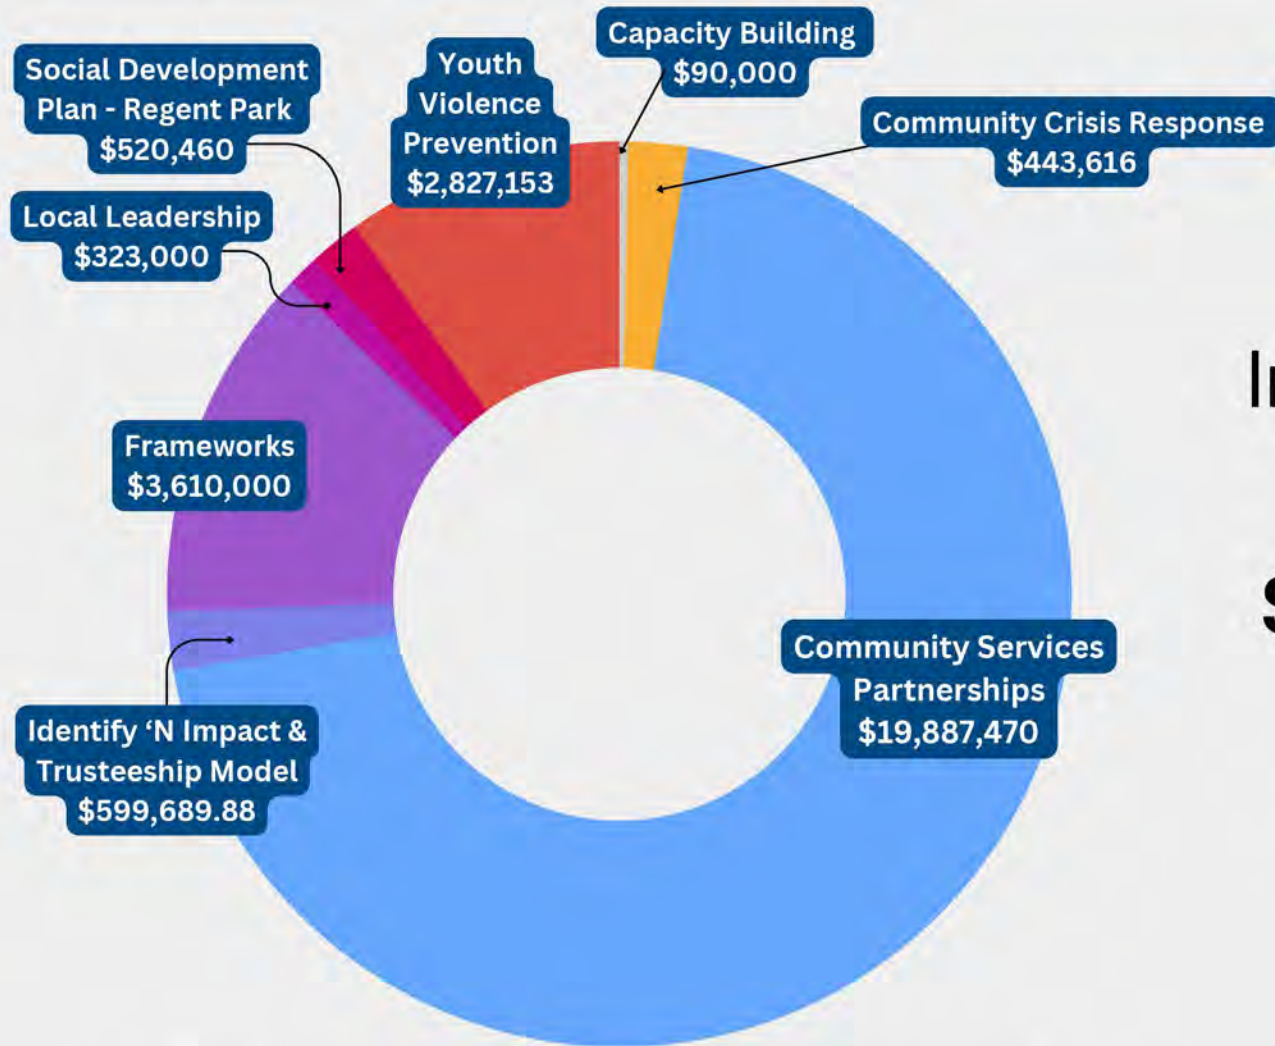

Openness

CFU prioritizes adaptability, inclusivity, and accessibility by engaging diverse communities, providing flexible support, and tailoring programs to meet equity and cultural needs.

Transparency

CFU ensures clear communication, transparent decision-making, routine disclosures, and fair funding agreements to promote accountability and accessibility.

2024 AT A GLANCE

In 2024, Community Funding released $28,291,048 to 225 organizations.

2024 COMMUNITY FUNDING INVESTMENTS

INDIGENOUS FUNDING FRAMEWORK

The Indigenous Funding Framework proposes promising practices that are designed to cultivate meaningful relationships and structures while supporting the self-determined needs and priorities identified by Indigenous organizations and communities at large.

INDIGENOUS FUNDING FRAMEWORK

In December 2024, City Council adopted the Indigenous Funding Framework, co-created with leaders from Indigenous not-for-profit organizations to address chronic underfunding while honouring Indigenous rights to self-determination. The Indigenous Funding Framework is a living document that reflects this work and our commitment to equitable funding investments and processes that reflect the self-determined needs and supports identified by Indigenous organizations and communities.

The development of the Indigenous Funding Framework was initiated in 2020 and included various components designed to learn from the experience of Indigenous-led organizations accessing funding, other funders who have developed more community-based approaches to investing in Indigenous communities and aligning with key City strategies and priorities.

This included:

- The establishment of an advisory committee consisting of leaders from Indigenous-led organizations funded by Social Development, Finance and Administration
- Key informant interviews with other funding organizations
- A grey literature review of emerging funding promising practices, including a review of relevant City strategies
- Surveys and roundtable conversations with both Indigenous organizations and funders supporting Indigenous communities
- A funding pilot leveraging the “take what you need, leave what you don’t” approach developed by the Toronto Aboriginal Support Services Council

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

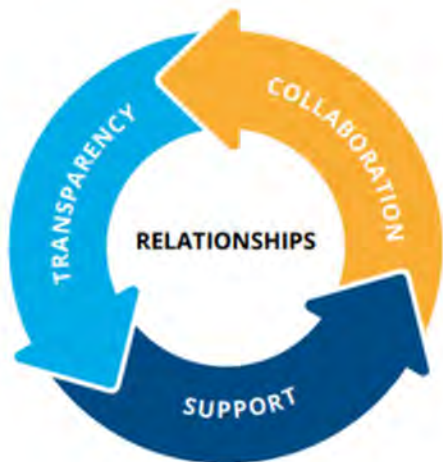

RELATIONSHIPS

Build, nurture, and sustain meaningful relationships based on clear communication that facilitates collaboration, transparency and support.

1

2

COLLABORATION

Foster a collaborative approach to resource management within the community. Encourage dialogue and cooperation among service providers to identify synergies, reduce duplication, and collectively address shared challenges.

TRANSPARENCY

Promote transparency in the allocation of funds to mitigate competition-related tensions. Establish clear criteria and communication channels for funding distribution to foster a sense of fairness and trust among service providers.

SUPPORT

Invest in capacity-building initiatives for service providers to enhance their ability to navigate diverse funding sources effectively. This could include training programs, workshops, or resources aimed at improving administrative efficiency.

FRAMEWORK GOALS

- 1 Increase funding to address chronic underfunding and disproportionate resource allocation.
- 2 Increase flexibility and honour Indigenous rights to self-determination.
- 3 Embrace a community-centric approach that prioritizes relationships.
- 4 Create space for cultural empowerment.

An increase in sustainable funding will provide Indigenous organizations the opportunity to hire dedicated staff and provide invaluable supports for Indigenous communities.

Promote a model that empowers Indigenous leaders with the autonomy to self-determine the unique needs of community. Flexibility is essential to support the changing needs of community.

Develop application processes collaboratively with community organizations to ensure flexibility, remove barriers and increase transparency. Application and reporting mechanisms should prioritize the diverse needs and capacities of Indigenous organizations.

Recognize that the impact of culture cannot be reduced to numerical values. Prioritize creating spaces that honor and celebrate cultural knowledge carriers and Elders, fostering an environment of self-determination where cultural practices are respected and valued.

In a roundtable with Indigenous organizations, the words relationship, flexibility and self-determination were used the most by Indigenous community leaders.

IMPLEMENTATION PLAN

Focus Area One Framework Implementation in SDFA's Community Funding December 2024 - December 2025

Focus Area One will evaluate the current "take what you need, leave what you don't" funding approach, impact, and processes in line with the goals and principles of the Framework. Leverage evaluation data to co-develop robust but culturally relevant reporting mechanisms.

Focus Area Two Community Service Partnership (CSP) Redesign January - October 2025

Focus Area Two will focus on the Community Funding Unit's CSP redesign and will implement the Framework's goals and principles into the design of our largest and longterm funding stream for organizations across Toronto. Indigenous funding targets will be developed from research in partnership with the Social Policy, Analysis and Research team (SPAR) team. Tailored support will be customized through the redesign process to ensure Indigenous applicants are aware of the funds and are successful.

Focus Area Three Streamline Community Funding Grants October 2025 to December 2026

Focus Area Three will focus on an internal review of all community funding grants to ensure a reconciliation lens reflective of the Framework's goals and principles is applied to each grant program. Consultations will be done with Indigenous grassroots, collectives, and non-profits to ensure the design and application of CFU's grants is open to Indigenous communities and have processes in place to support Indigenous applicants. An outreach strategy for Indigenous communities will be developed.

Ongoing

- Develop and deliver engagement sessions about the Framework with colleagues in Social Development, Finance and Administration, other divisions and external funders to promote the Framework and share learnings.
- Advocate to City Council for increased funding.
- Work collaboratively with other City divisions to continue identifying and implementing improvements to granting processes.

INDIGENOUS FUNDING FRAMEWORK

FUNDING ALLOTMENT	NUMBER OF GROUPS FUNDED
$1,850,000	23

In 2023, 23 Indigenous organizations were funded with a total of $1.85 million. Organizations reported using the unrestricted funds for costs such as food assistance, administrative costs, professional development, small repairs, equipment, and staffing. Many organizations reported that the self-determined nature of the funding was crucial to helping their organizations run and address costs that would normally not be supported through other funding sources.

Toronto and York Region Metis Council identified food security is one of the top concerns for many community members. A total of 325 households, 750 individuals including 200 children received food support by way of grocery gift cards.

"I wanted to take a moment to express my heartfelt thanks for the generous gift of grocery store gift cards that you recently provided to me. As a student facing various challenges, especially during these uncertain times, your gift allowed me to focus more on my studies without worrying about how to afford basic necessities at this time." – Testimonial from community member

Top 5 Expenses

- 24% – food support
- 23% – health and safety expenses such as small renovations, cleaning supplies, etc.
- 18% – salaries
- 11% – operational and administrative supports
- 6% – telecommunications

Other expenses included traditional medicines, professional development, mental health supports, honorariums and program supplies.

INDIGENOUS FUNDING FRAMEWORK

2023 RECAP The Impact

These funds are not just financial resources – they are opportunities for us to respond swiftly to the evolving needs of our community. With this flexibility, we have been able to create essential programs and supports precisely where they are most needed, fostering an environment conducive to healing and growth”
– 2-Spirited People of the 1st Nations

“

Many non-profits, including us, operate mainly on project-based funding, which rarely leaves space for administrative expenses, rent, capital upgrades, and other essential expenses. So, this funding was crucial for our organization to keep our doors open and programming running.” – Tungasuvvingat Inuit Toronto

“

Funding for the enhanced cleaning project has allowed Wigwamen to ensure that the common areas in our multiple-unit buildings and scattered housing units are cleaned and sanitized more regularly and more thoroughly than we have been able to do in the past. For the tenants, the result is an increased sense of pride in their building. For the general public, the message is that Indigenous affordable housing is well maintained and is something which ought to be welcomed in the community. – Wigwamen

INDIGENOUS FUNDING FRAMEWORK

The “take what you need, leave what you don’t” or community basket approach is a method of distributing funds that supports self-determined funding priorities and an Indigenous-led process. Funds received through the Indigenous Funding Framework were unrestricted in use and all participating members and friends of the Toronto Aboriginal Support Services Council are Indigenous-led not-for-profit organizations with social service mandates serving Torontonians. The process demonstrates the nimbleness of grant making responses that emerged during the pandemic and provides pathways to post-pandemic funding that addresses reconciliation commitments.

In the “take what you need, leave what you don’t” approach, organizations are offered an equal portion of available funding. Organizations may pass on the funding or accept a smaller share, should their organization not require full funding. Unused funding from one organization can then be provide to an organization with greater need that year. In 2024, all organizations were in need of full support as pandemic-related funding had ended while increased needs continued.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PARTNERSHIPS

Community Service Partnerships (CSP) funding provides ongoing support to Toronto's non-profit sector to deliver high-quality and relevant programs and services that build vibrant, equitable, inclusive, safe neighbourhoods and communities where the needs of people and communities who are vulnerable are met.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PARTNERSHIPS RENEWAL

Renewal Timelines

Community Service Partnerships is being reviewed and redesigned to ensure that the funding stream supports a strong community-based sector. The final two years of the Community Service Partnerships renewal process will focus on framework design and an open grant call to select organizations aligned with the new model.

2025

- Development of the refreshed Community Service Partnerships Framework, including:
- Alignment with the Indigenous and Black-Mandated Funding Frameworks and other City of Toronto equity policies.
- The development of reconciliation and equity key performance indicators.
- The development of a monitoring and evaluation framework to assess the impact of the new model.

2026

Administration of a grant call to align funding agreements with a new model.

2027

New funding agreements begin.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PARTNERSHIPS RENEWAL

Community Engagement Series

The 2024 Engagement Series featured nine sessions from August to October, engaging 280 participants in discussions about the Community Service Partnerships funding stream, community priorities, reconciliation, and equity. Specialized sessions included youth engagement with the Toronto Youth Cabinet, a French-language session for Francophone organizations in partnership with the Toronto Newcomer Office, and two sessions for Toronto residents. Seven sessions were conducted virtually to meet high demand.

Positive outcomes included:

- Relationship-Building: Attendees shared lived experiences and expressed appreciation for the engagement series
- Knowledge Mobilization: Each session included presentations and Q&A opportunities with City staff
- Collaborative Discussions: Participants reflected on group responses and engaged directly with City staff
- Soliciting Feedback: Nearly 500 responses were collected through activities, achieving an 82% engagement rate

These outcomes provided valuable insights into community needs, helping shape the CSP renewal process.

Key Issues Identified: Affordable housing, poverty, food insecurity, youth employment, and community safety.

Recommendations: Increased funding, transparency, capacity-building, simplified processes, and ongoing community engagement.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PARTNERSHIPS RENEWAL

2024 Engagement Survey

The 2024 CSP Engagement Survey, conducted from August 19 to October 10, received 195 responses, including 178 organizations (5 Indigenous-led, 27 Black-mandated).

The survey provided valuable feedback, building on themes from the engagement series and offering additional context to guide the new model's development. Key themes include:

- Top Challenges: Increased costs (capital, professional fees, salaries, and admin), rising demand for services, and reduced revenues from other government funding sources.
- Resources and Support Needed: Greater funding, access to low-cost or free space, and enhanced partnerships. Residents and youth also seek volunteer and leadership opportunities, with childcare support needed to participate.
- Outcomes: Programs align with Community Service Partnerships' goals, focusing on social connections and poverty alleviation, primarily through food access.

REGENT PARK SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT GRANT

The Project

Cultural Bazaar is a vibrant outdoor summer market in Regent Park that offers a platform for local vendors to showcase multicultural food, jewelry, clothing, and artisan goods. The event, led by residents, engages the community by providing roles for youth and residents as staff, DJs, photographers, and henna artists, and has attracted over 4,000 attendees. It also fosters civic engagement and connection, particularly among youth, while celebrating cultural diversity through seasonal events like the Eid Market.

2023 Group Highlight: Mothers of Peace Regent Park

The Impact

The Cultural Bazaar strengthens community bonds by empowering residents, supporting local businesses, and celebrating Regent Park's diversity. It brings people together, expands networks, and fosters a sense of belonging. Each year, residents eagerly anticipate the event, which unites neighbours across backgrounds and creates a welcoming atmosphere.

The Bazaar also provides meaningful opportunities—women play key roles, and youth staff and volunteers gain valuable experience, with eight individuals securing scholarships or jobs. As one resident shared, "Please do arrange as much as possible. It is good for our people." Committed to community building, the Bazaar will continue to be a vital celebration of Regent Park's evolving diversity.

One individual stands out—a young woman who initially felt disheartened by her job prospects and faced barriers to securing employment. Through our tailored workshop event and mentorship program, she not only revamped her resume but also gained newfound confidence in herself. Her journey is a testament to the resilience of our community. As she landed a job that matched her skills and aspirations, she shared this inspiring quote: “Empowerment isn't just about finding a job; it's about finding your voice, your worth, and the belief that you can shape your own future. This project gave me the tools, but more importantly, it gave me the belief in myself.

The Impact

“ All of participants are seniors. They had felt lonely and isolated during the pandemic so they were happy to attend the events we hosted as we got the fund from City of Toronto. As they were walking to the park, they talked a lot each other. They were smiling and walking. Seniors wanted to get more fund to create more events for them. They do not want to stay at home lonely, nobody talk with them. If we have some events, they can attend and meet someone else or make new friends. - Project Lead

The Project

FootPrintZ is a three-year initiative addressing gun violence and gang involvement by empowering Black and racialized youth (16–24) in Eglinton East. Through 1:1 support, employment opportunities, peer mentorship, elder guidance, training, and community events, participants build resilience, conflict resolution, and leadership skills. The program connects youth and families to culturally relevant counseling and CPI certification to enhance employability. A Youth Engagement Committee ensures youth leadership in program development, while the Scarborough Gun Violence Committee provides system-level insights to strengthen impact.

“One time my next door neighbour told me he’s been in the same unit for almost 30 years, and he said it with pride!! The thought of that being me is scary. The Footprintz Project is helping me plan my way up out the hood!” –Jahnae, 18

“My favourite part is how much I’m learning about myself. My dad’s always in jail and my mom’s always working. The old me was so angry but after getting comfortable with TFP staff and opening up more, I realized I was actually more sad and lonely, not angry. It’s way easier to fix a problem when you know what it is.” –Chico, 18

“ Our project made a significant impact by fostering understanding, healing, and community engagement among youth. We brought in someone who shared his personal experiences with gun violence and how he managed to cope with its aftermath. For the speaker, this was a unique opportunity to process his trauma in a supportive environment and discuss ways the community can combat such issues. We could tell the project had an impact through the positive feedback and experiences shared by the youth. They formed strong relationships with one another and expressed a deeper understanding of the effects of gun violence. Many participants showed a heightened interest in community work, expressing a desire to become more involved in initiatives aimed at preventing violence and supporting those affected. This enthusiasm and commitment from the youth demonstrated the project's success in inspiring and empowering them to make a difference in their communities. – Project Lead

This project had the impact of bringing kids and families together in support of each other. Through the couple months I have seen more families engage in conversation inside and outside of the studio because of the connections they have made. I constantly see them outside in the community getting together practicing the dances that they have learned. Every week they were so eager to rush in and take in as much material as possible. A parent even told me that the discipline they learn in class helped with their focus in school. Lastly by the end of the program the kids didn't want it to end. When I would run into them in the community they would constantly ask me when is dance coming back.

My Name is Shondelle Reis, Over the past few months, I have been deeply involved in a transformative program that have received invaluable support from the city: the Danzig Stage initiative. This program has left a profound impact on the community, strengthening families and empowering individuals in meaningful ways.

Through the Danzig Stage program, I have witnessed an incredible transformation in the children involved. Once shy and hesitant, they have blossomed into confident, expressive individuals who are unafraid to stand up, speak in front of crowds, and assert their self-worth. This initiative has also been instrumental in improving children's reading literacy, providing them with the tools and confidence to excel not only in performance but also in academics. The growth in their self-esteem and communication skills is a testament to the power of this program to uplift and inspire.

The Stage is an incredible example of how community-focused initiatives can bring about real, lasting change. From instilling confidence in our youth to helping families navigate complex emotions and build stronger relationships, the Danzig Stage Initiative is shaping brighter futures for the Danzig community. It is my hope and prayer that we continue to receive the support needed to flourish and grow and yield even greater benefits for years to come.
